Overview

What are the best portable power stations?

To help you decide, I tested the efficiency, in a variety of scenarios, of the best portable power stations from Jackery, Oupes, EcoFlow, Anker, Goal Zero, Greccell, Bluetti, Dakota Lithium, Lion Energy, Vtoman, and Oupes. Why should you buy a portable power station?

Bring big backup power with you with these expert-recommended portable power stations, which can store enough power to charge electronics, appliances, and more.

Which battery is best for a portable power station?

These days most portable power stations, including all those we recommend here, use LiFePO4 batteries, which are capable of holding far more cycles, which is the number of times a battery goes through a complete discharge and recharge, than older lithium-ion batteries while also being less likely to combust.

Can a power station be used as a ups?

To use these power stations as a UPS, plug them into the wall, then plug whatever devices you want backed up into the station's AC output ports. When the power is on, those devices use energy from the grid. When there is a power outage, the power station instantly switches these devices to battery power.

What spec should you consider when buying a power station?

Whatever the reason you are purchasing a power station, the most important spec to pay attention to is watt hours, which is a measurement of how much energy the power station can hold. While a particular power station might claim to hold 1,000 watt hours, the actual amount of usable power you can get out of it is a different story.

What makes a good power station?

Stations with over 3000Wh can deliver power for extended periods, making them ideal for off-grid adventures or emergency situations. Furthermore, consider the variety of output options available. Models with multiple AC outlets and USB-C ports offer greater versatility, enabling you to support several devices at once.
